The rise of the St. Louis Hawks to prominence in the National Basketball Association is a success story that rates second to none in the annals of sports in the United States.

The Hawks moved to St. Louis in May of 1955, coming to a city that already had lost one National Basketball Association franchise - the St. Louis Bombers; a baseball club - the St. Louis Browns; a hockey team - the St. Louis Flyers; and a football team - the St. Louis Knights.

The success of the Hawks in the ensuing eleven years triggered a sports revival that saw the National Football League Chicago Cardinals move here; pro hockey - the Central League St. Louis Braves - return; the awarding of National Hockey League franchise to the city and pro soccer set to start here next April.

No other city in the United States has enjoyed such a sports revival.

In 1955, the Hawks were an unheralded club with only Bob Pettit, the league's rookie of the year the previous season, and All-American Frank Selvy, of Furman U. well-known "names". But the supporting casts included some well-traveled but capable pros and owner Ben Kerner began to build what was to become the Western Division's most powerful club.

The Hawks tied for second place with Minneapolis in their initial season here, then upset the Lakers in the best out of three semi-final playoffs. Then they won the first two games of the Western finals from Detroit (actually Fort Wayne) then lost the next three.

The next season, in 1956-57, the Hawks won the first of five straight Western Division titles. They finished in a three-way tie with Minneapolis and Fort Wayne, on the last day of the season. They downed first Fort Wayne, then the Lakers in special play off to earn the crown.

After sweeping to the Western Division playoff title, they battled the Eastern champions, Boston, down to the wire in a best out of seven series losing the final of the seven-game set in Boston, 125-123 in a double overtime game that has been tabbed as the most exciting game in the history of the NBA.

The following season - 1957-58 - the Hawks soared to the World Championship defeating Boston four games to two after winning the Western Division crown by eight full games.

In the final game of the championship series, Bob Pettit played the greatest game of his pro career, scoring 19 of the Hawks last 21 points in the final period - with a total of 50 for the game - to spark the Hawks to the title.

The Hawks made it three divisional crowns in a row in 1958-59 winning the crown by 16 games. But in the Western final playoffs, an injury to Slater Martin sidelined him and the Hawks lost to the Minneapolis Lakers four games to two, losing the last two games by margins of one and two points. The Hawks two triumphs were by margins of 30 and 34 points.

In 1959-60, the Hawks won their fourth straight title, by 15 games, won the divisional playoff crown and lost to Boston in a seven-game championship series.

Then came their fifth straight crown a year later - a 51-and-28 mark - again by 15-games. But in the championship playoffs, Boston again triumphed four games to two.

Injuries keyed the Hawks demise from power in 1961-62, a season that saw them fall to a 29-51 mark and fourth place in the West. It marked the first time that the Hawks failed to make the playoffs since coming to St. Louis in 1955.

Veteran guard, John McCarthy, suffered a leg injury and missed the last 65 games of the season. Clyde Lovellette, one-time member of pro basketball's highest scoring front line (Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagan were the other members), missed 40 games and veteran center, Larry Foust, sat out 23 games. And to make matters worse, Len Wilkens a brilliant guard in his rookie season the previous year, was unable to get out of service requirements (he was held over a year) and could play in only 20 contests, commuting to and from St. Louis and other league cities from Fort Lee, Va.

A complete change-over was in the works, obviously, and it came the following season. Harry Gallatin, pro basketball's one-time Iron Man, was hired away from Southern Illinois U. where he completed a successful four-year term there, to coach the Hawks and Kerner began to rebuild the ball club. Actually, he started that job a year earlier when he completed a series of deals that saw the Hawks purchase the rights to vet Mike Farmer and rookie Gene Tormohlen, from Cincinnati and Syracuse, who were playing in the short-lived American Basketball League.

Only three players remained when the 1962-63 season opened; Bob Pettit, Len Wilkens, and Cliff Hagan. The new Hawks - eight in all - came via the draft, trades, and outright purchase. But the blending was successful.

From a mark of 29-51 in the 1961-62 season, the Hawks jumped to 48-32 mark and second place in the West, back of the Los Angeles Lakers.

With only Hagan, Pettit, and Wilkens returning, the Hawks were to eventually add eight new men. Draftees who made good were center Zelmo Beaty and guard Chico Vaughn, selected in the 1962 picks; John Barnhill, who was tabbed in 1959 and who had played AAU and ABL ball; Farmer, acquired from Cincinnati at a time he was still playing in the "other" league; vet center Phil Jordan, who gave the club a fine half-season after his purchase from Chicago and Bob Duffy, a backline of much promise who had been tabbed second that spring but who failed to live up to his clippings and who eventually was traded to New York.

In mid-season, the American League folded and Tormohlen and Bill Bridges, a great rebounder who had been drafted second two years previously by Chicago and acquired by Kerner in a three-man deal, joined the Hawks.

The club flirted with first place throughout the season, hit a low spot in January, and came with a rush at the end. They downed Detroit three games to one in the semi-final playoffs and lost to the Lakers in the final series, four games to three.

It was a great year capped by exciting playoff battle, and Gallatin earned Coach of the Year honors in the NBA in his first season at the club's helm.

In 1963-64, the Hawks finished second again but battled the eventual winning San Francisco right down to the final game of the season. A 21-game mid-season stint in which Beaty, the club's only reliable center, was out of action hampered the Hawks title aspirations.

The Hawks beat the third-place Lakers in the semi-final playoffs, then fought the Warriors to the final game of the seven-game Western finals before losing at San Francisco. The rivalry between the two clubs was so close that of the 19 games played between the two teams all season, including playoffs, the Warriors won 10 and the Hawks 9.

There were few new faces last year but one newcomer, Richie Guerin, proved one of the best moves Kerner ever made. The veteran guard was acquired from New York during the first week of the regular season and put together a brilliant season, breaking the team scoring mark for guards and exhibiting skills that few thought him capable of.

The season of 1964-65 was the Year of Injury as the Hawks were hit with a rash of crippling ailments that saw their stars miss a good part of the final half of the season. Bob Pettit hit the 20,000 point mark to become the first player in pro basketball history to top that lofty diadem but the Hawks team captain missed 30 games with various injuries to set the pattern for the season.

Center Zelmo Beaty proved the only player to appear in all 80 games as the injury jinx saw player-coach Richie Guerin miss 23 contests, Mike Farmer sidelined for 20 games, John Barnhill on the shelf for 36, and rookie Jeff Mullins out for 31. Minor ailments sidelined Charley Vaughn, Len Wilkens, and Cliff Hagan for short spurts too.

The Hawks were in and out of first place most of the year, fell back in late December and then finished with a tremendous flurry winning 13 of 16 games although playing with only six hale and hearty players.

Guerin, one of the top guards in pro basketball history, was appointed player-coach of the Hawks December 27 replacing Harry Gallatin who, in turn, took over as head coach of the New York Knicks, the team with which he broke into the NBA. Guerin, instituting a fast break offense that utilized the talents of his charges more effectively, had a 26-19 won-and-lost effort for the balance of the year.

The Hawks finished four games back of the Los Angeles Lakers in the West after their garrison finish and were eliminated in the semi-final round of the Western playoffs by the Baltimore Bullets. Again, the injury jinx hampered the club as Bob Pettit played the four-game playoff set virtually on one leg.

Pettit - long the dominant figure in the history of the Hawks, if not the entire NBA, retired at the end of last season closing out one era and opening the doors to another.

Last season, the Hawks started anew, earning once again the acclaim of the basketball world as the Cinderella team of the pro sport. Injuries hampered veterans Len Wilkens, Cliff Hagan and Bill Bridges and only player-coach Richie Guerin and center Zelmo Beaty played in all 80 games. But the garrison finish of the Hawks last spring indicates that St. Louis is once again on the move and certain to be in the thick of the pennant fight in the Western Division this coming season.

After edging San Francisco for third place by a single game, the Hawks, despite injuries to four key players, won three straight games from Baltimore in the opening round of the Western playoffs, then extended the Los Angeles Lakers to final two minutes of the seventh game of the Western finals before losing. The Hawks had lost three of the first four games in that series; beat the Lakers in Los Angeles 112-100; came roaring back with one of the greatest performances in NBA history to tie the series at three games each with a 131-127 win here, before losing the finale.

A mid-season trade that saw the Hawks acquire Joe Caldwell and Rod Thorn from Detroit in exchange for John Barnhill, John Tresvant and Charley Vaughn was a big impetus in the Hawks surge. Caldwell developed into one of the most exciting players in the league and the hard-driving Thorn could come into his own this season.

Much has been written about the supremacy of the World Champion Boston Celtics during the past 11 years and the Celts are truly one of the remarkable sports teams of all-time. But the Hawks have the next best won-and-lost record, in the NBA, during that period, having won 458 games as against 340 losses over this period. The Hawks have annexed five Western Division titles and a world championship, in 1958 - the only time Boston has failed to win the world crown. Add to these impressive figures, four second-place finishes and one third, and you must come to a logical conclusion...if Boston has been the greatest pro basketball team during this era, the St. Louis Hawks must be rated just behind them.

BEN KERNER

The story of the St. Louis Hawks and the club's Cinderella climb to the summit as one of the sports world's finest franchises revolves around Ben Kerner and his grim determination to make a go of a situation that had been described countless times as virtually hopeless.

The tale of Kerner and his Hawks started back in his home town of Buffalo, New York. A Canisius College and University of Buffalo alumnus, he founded a profitable sports advertising and promotion firm in the early 1940's. He entered service in 1942, and by the time he came out, a business associate, Leo Ferris, had acquired a franchise in the old National League. Seldom has a man, roped into an investment of something in which he had little interest, worked as hard as Kerner did the next 10 years. The road led from Buffalo to the Tri-Cities (Moline and Rock Island in Illinois and Davenport in Iowa) to Milwaukee where the end was evident when the Braves took the city by storm.

Ferris long since had departed, having sold his end to Kerner. And bitten deeply by the basketball bug, Kerner had battled major cities in the pro basketball war. He had outlasted many, including St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Toronto - but at a terrific price in personal pride. His Hawks finished fourth in his division four straight times, in the merged NBA due mainly to his being forced to sell whatever star players he developed in order to continue in operation.

Kerner was in basketball 10 years and had lost $108,000, without ever drawing a cent in salary, when the end appeared near in Milwaukee at the end of the 1955 season. This was due partly to a lack of court interest.....and partly to the great popularity of the Milwaukee Braves.

After visiting several other cities, Kerner decided to move the team to St. Louis, despite the pleas of various sports officials and newspapermen throughout the country who pointed out to him that this city had already lost one pro basketball team - the Bombers; a major league baseball club - the Browns; and a hockey team -'the Flyers.

"I made up my mind to come to St. Louis," Kerner remembers, "Since there had been newspaper interest here and we did draw around 8,000 people that previous February when we played here, despite competition from the opening of Cinerama and some other functions. And the game was played on Ash Wednesday."

The rest is history. By astute trading, he built a club that, starting in 1956-57, won five straight Western Division titles and one world Championship, that in 1957-58.

Four years ago, injuries to key personnel and the loss of guard Len Wilkens to military service were factors in the club's plumenting to fourth place in the West. But when a rebuilding job was evident, Kerner took charge in a hurry. Trades brought Mike Farmer, Phil Jordon and Bill Bridges plus Gene Tormohlen, a reserve center. In all, eight new faces were added and the Hawks came through with a remarkable record of 48 wins and 32 losses and a second place finish.

Two years ago, the Hawks battled the San Francisco Warriors right down to the final game of the season before losing the Western Division crown to the Tribe. And, after defeating Los Angeles in the first round of the playoffs, they carried the Warriors to the full seven games of the Western Division finals before losing at San Francisco.

In Kerner's early days in the sport, coaches were expendable and in Milwaukee alone he had three - Doxie Moore, Andrew (Fuzzy) Levane and William (Red) Holzman. In St. Louis, Ben has had ten - including Holzman, Slater Martin (who asked to be replaced since he felt he was more valuable to the team as a player than as a coach), Alex Hannum, Andy Phillip, Ed Macauley, Paul Seymour, Bob Pettit (who, like Martin, has headed the club for various games throughout the Hawks stay here), Levane again, Harry Gallatin and now Richie Guerin, who is serving as a player-coach.

It is typical of Kerner that he helped acquire jobs for men who at one time coached for him. Levane was head coach of the New York Knicks, boosted for the job by Kerner's recommendation of him. Holzman is assistant coach and chief scout of the Knicks. Hannum is now coach of the San Francisco Warriors and Gallatin was tabbed for the Knicks post shortly after he was replaced last year after Kerner gave him an unqualified recommendation.

In fact, Kerner once gave Red Auerbach, his coach at Tri-Cities, to Boston when the Celtics pleaded they needed a "big name" to help them establish the sport in that city.

This year, six of the nine NBA coaches have either playing or coaching experience with the Hawks. They are Paul Seymour, newly-appointed coach of Baltimore; Hannum at San Francisco; Auerbach with the Celtics; Gallatin at New York; former Hawks player and assistant coach, Jack McMahon, at Cincinnati, and Hawks coach Richie Guerin.

When he came to St. Louis, in 1954, Kerner immediately found that all of his advisors were wrong. All that this area needed was someone to present a good representative team and be willing to work to put pro basketball across to the public in the proper setting.

An astute promoter, Kerner instituted a summer clinic program for youngsters employing Hawks players as instructors. More than 400,000 youngsters attended the sessions. Six years ago, Kerner presented a series of clinics and fashion shows for women, two at the fashionable Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel in St. Louis, and another at Kiel Auditorium.

A pioneer in presenting added attractions at the Hawks games, Kerner has featured many of the nation's top entertainers as part of the club's game entertainment each season. Among the top names who have appeared are Count Basie, Lionel Hampton, George Shearing, Al Hirt, Guy Lombardo, Woody Herman, Harry James and Stan Kenton.

Other special events have included pro tennis matches featuring the top players in the world; golf exhibitions by top touring pros; an invitational bowling tourney that drew crowds of 12,000 and 11,000 in two years with special alleys being constructed for this event at the Arena, and exhibitions by top gymnastic groups.

Recognizing that basketball interest was dormant when the team first moved here, Kerner organized a speaker's bureau and now players and officials of the Hawks make more than 300 personal appearances and speeches each year. Films of Hawks games and NBA All-Star Games are available to organizations.

Seven years ago, when he realized that new seats and a better floor arrangement were needed at Kiel, he advanced the City of St. Louis $35,000 so that the new setup could be purchased quickly. Then he purchased a $2500 scoreboard and presented it to the city as a gift.

Six years ago, he had special baskets designed which operating on a hydraulic lift, could be installed and moved out quicker than any ever produced to that time. The ones installed at Kiel were the first used anywhere in the world. Then, he advanced the city money to purchase a new floor for Kiel and purchased a new floor for his club's games at the Arena.

That deal had an interesting sidelight. Foiled in his attempt to buy Elgin Baylor from the Lakers when that club was in Minneapolis, he bought "the floor Elgin played on," giving the Lakers $12,500 for the hardwood after offering $200,000 for Baylor.

A pioneer in the field of radio and TV sports programming, the Hawks have the most lavish radio-TV programming in the NBA. All of the club's games are broadcast live and direct, including pre-season, regular season and playoff games while a number of games are telecast to St. Louis from the road each year.

He instituted the NBA Game of the Week network last year and pioneered an idea that could become standard proceedure with all sports in a few years.

Several weekly radio shows featuring Kerner himself and other Hawks players and personalities are presented.

Last year, as part of the city's Bicentennial celebration, he was host of the NBA All-Star game, for the third time in 10 years. And he presented another Bicentennial feature - a game between the Russian and American national teams, here last April.

This past summer, Kerner devised a new idea in sports promotion that is certain to be adopted by not only other NBA clubs but teams in other professional sports.

Realizing that a 40-game home schedule in any one city could not be properly presented and conforming to the result of numerous surveys conducted among the club's fans, he outlined a plan whereby a complete round of games - one against each of the other eight NBA clubs - would be transfered from St. Louis to another city in the Mid-West.

After investigating numerous cities, Kerner selected Memphis, where the Hawks had a built-in following due to yearly appearances in that city in pre-season exhibition games.

As one of the fastest growing cities in the nation, Memphis had a new city-owned coliseum seating 12,000 and parking facilities for 4,000 cars.

Fans in that city were quick to take advantage of a season ticket plan whereby they could see each of the league teams against the Hawks and the eight games played there resulted in four sellouts.

The success of the Memphis plan was indicated when Cincinnati moved a slate of nine games - one with each league club - to Cleveland and Chicago, the NBA's newest entry, will play five league games in Evansville, Indiana. Phiadelphia is also expected to play at least five games in Pittsburgh this coming year.

The Hawks will return to Memphis again this season with a slate of games against each of the other nine league members starting December 19.

This summer, Kerner set-up the makings of a minor league system for the Hawks establishing the first complete working agreement with a minor league team. The Hawks will provide both the entire squad and the coach for the Battle Creek (Michigan) Braves of the North American Basketball League - in addition to a partial working agreement with Wilkes-Barre (Pennsylvania) of the Eastern League.

Pro basketball has become Kerner's entire life. One has only to watch him at a game to appreciate the intensity of his feelings. Well-respected by newspapermen throughout the country, that respect continues over to his players. Many of his top stars have exclaimed "that they would rather retire than play for another owner."

Kerner was in basketball 12 years before he even proceeded to draw a salary from the game but he has built the Hawks into one of the finest franchises in sports. He works at it seven-days a week, often from 15 to 20-hours a day. This is best illustrated by an incident that happened the morning after the Hawks won their world crown in 1958. The post-game celebration ended in the wee hours of Sunday morning, yet when a local paper sent a photographer to the Hawks office at 9:00 A.M. that Sunday morning, there was Kerner and his long-time assistant, Marty Blake, busy at work. "What happened last night is over with," he explained, "today starts a new season." Obviously, Kerner is not one to rest on yesterday's achievements.

One of three player-coaches in the NBA (Dave DeBusschere of Detroit and Bill Russell of Boston are the other two), Guerin took over as coach of the Hawks December 27, 1964, and guided the club to 28-19 record for balance of that season....(He replaced Harry Gallatin)....Did outstanding job in bringing Hawks in second that year....Last year, in first complete season, he brought the club in third, and led them to a sensational playoff series against Baltimore and LA....Hawks have 64-63 regular season mark and 7-7 playoff record under Guerin....He led club with 20.6 during playoffs and in assists with 79....Played in all 80 games last year despite crippling injuries which carried over into playoffs....Had high mark of 37 last year vs Detroit, which is his high mark as Hawks player....He ranks fourth among the active players on the all-time NBA scoring charts with 13,426 points in 733 games over a 10 year period....This will be his final year as a player....He wanted to retire last year but was persuaded to continue after his brilliant playoff performance by former NBA stars, Carl Braun and Bob Cousy....Still one of the best guards in the NBA in all departments...He came to the start of the 1963-64 season (October 20, after two games) from New York in exchange for a reported $50,0000 and the Hawks second draft choice (1964)....In his first year with St. Louis he set a new team mark for guards scoring 1,023 points in 78 games for a 13.1 mark....(record broken in 1964 by Wilkens)....Injuries sidelined him for 23 games in 1964-65 although he managed to score 821 points in 57 outings for a 14.4 mark.....He played less than 3 minutes in six of those games....His fg% of .446 (295 of 662 shots) was the best of his nine-year career....Played at little-known Iona College during his collegiate days even though he led the Metropolitan area cagers in scoring his senior year (53-54) with 519 points....He was drafted by the Knicks but spent the next two years in service with the famed Quantico Marines, winning all-service honors both seasons....He has played in six All-Star games, averaging 10.5 per contest and was named to the All-League second team in 1962....In seven years with New York, he led that club in scoring three times, setting a single-season game high of 57 points vs. Syracuse December 11, 1959, at New York....He also holds the Knicks single-season total points record of 2,303 set in 1961-62 and holds other New York team single game marks of 23 field goals; 22 free throws and 21 assists....He needed only 58 points to become the Knicks all-time career point-leader before he was traded to the Hawks....He had scored 10,392 in seven years while Carl Braun, now a Hawks scout, had scored 10,449 in 12 years....A great driver and one of the last of the two-handed set shooters, Guerin made a successful adjustment from forward to guard when he entered pro ball (although he sometimes will switch to a forward against certain players)....He is a typical New Yorker....Born in the Bronx, raised in Queens, went to Iona College in Westchester and lives in Suffolk County in Long Island....Did not play high school basketball until his senior year at Mt. ZELMO BEATY

AGE: 26
HEIGHT: 6' 9" MR. CLEAN
WEIGHT: 235 lbs. BIG Z
Born in Hillister, Texas, October 25, 1939
Residence: Florissant (St. Louis), Missouri
College: Prairie View A & M College, Texas from 1958 to 1962

A fine young performer who should blossom into one of the top stars in the NBA this season....This will be his fifth year with the Hawks and he has improved tremendously in each season....Last year, he and coach Guerin were the only players to appear in all 80 games. Beaty led the club in most every department last year - his best as a pro....He played in most minutes (3072); had most field goals (616); took most shots (1301); had the best field goal percentage (.473); made the most free throws (424); took the most free throws (559); grabbed the most rebounds (1086); which was sixth best in the NBA; scored the most points (1656), 9th best in the league; and had a 20.7 per game mark....He had a 19.3 per game average in the playoffs hitting .505 from the field with 13.2 rebounds in 10 games....Three years ago, a knee injury suffered in mid-December in the final seconds of a game with Philaelphia forced him to sit out the next 21 games and that injury probably cost the club its sixth Western Division flag since the Hawks lost the title to San Francisco on the final day of the season....Beaty is the fastest center in the league, has fine moves around the hoop and is a good, if not great rebounder....He has a tendency to mishandle too many passes and must take more shots (he averaged slightly better than 16 field goal attempts last year and only 13 per game two years ago)... He was the Hawks first draft in 1962 albeit a virtual unknown despite a meteoric career at Prairie View A & M....He led that school to the NAIA national title in 1962 at the annual tourney in Kansas City winning MVP honors....He scored 2,567 points in 108 college games as his club won 90 of them....He had 2,057 rebounds for a 19.4 mark and had an almost unvelievable field goal percentage of .655 on 971 goals in 1483 attempts....Led Prairie View to two Southwestern Conference titles and won for himself two small college All-American awards and three NAIA All-American selections....In high school, he played baseball, basketball and football winning all-state honors in basketball his last two years....High game in college was 48 vs Wiley (Texas) College in February 1962, and high game as pro was vs Boston at Memphis, March 7, 1966 when he scored 39 pointers.....He is a sales representative for Anheuser-Busch Inc. in the off-season....Married to the former Annie Mallard, they have a daughter, Deborah Kaye 3½, and a son, Darrall, seven months....He is one of nine Hawks who live in St. Louis the year round.

WILLIAM BRIDGES

AGE: 27
HEIGHT: 6' 6"
WEIGHT: 235 lbs.
"BIG BILL"
Born in Hobbs, New Mexico on April 4, 1939
Residence: St. Louis, Missouri
College: University of Kansas from 1957 to 1961

A fast-rising young star, Bridges came into his own in the final month of last season and the playoffs....He hit .506 from the field in post-season play with 203 markers in 10 games for a 20.3 mark....He led the Hawks in rebounding in the playoffs with a per-game mark of 14.9....His field goal percentage was 99 points better than he had achieved during the regular season...Coach Richie Guerin instituted several new plays enabling Bill to use the hook shot that made him the terror of the American League five years ago and Bill became the complete player that everyone felt he would be - in time....He usually gets the other team's top forward and is a fine defensive player....Had carrer mark of 32 versus Baltimore on March 30 here in the third game of the Western Division semi-final playoffs....His regular season high of 31 came versus his pet team, Cincinnati, at Cincinnati November 24, 1965....Bill is a member of Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's Committee on Youth Development and makes numerous trips to Washington, D. C., even during the season to participate in this project....A fine golfer, he has a four handicap and is the best driver on the club - in golf that is....Bill did some radio work for KMOX Radio in St. Louis last year and hopes to make that his full-time occupation after his playing days are over with....This will be his fourth full year with the Hawks although he did see action in 27 games in 1963 after joining the team after Kansas City of the defunct American Basketball League folded in January.... The Hawks had acquired the rights to him from Chicago (now Baltimore) in the summer of 1962 giving up guard Al Ferrari and forward Shellie McMillan, both now out of basketball....At Kansas University, he was an All-Big Eight selection, at center, for three years and was named the conference's Most Valuable Player in his senior year in 1961....He set Kansas University record in conference rebound marks with 580 grabs in his senior year....His career total of 1,081 rebounds is also a school mark....He won the Big Eight rebound crown each of his three varsity seasons....He also holds the Big Eight tourney rebound mark with 145 grabs and the tourney single series record of 64 set in 1960....He ranks fifth among the all-time Kansas University players with 1,028 points trailing only former NBA stars Charley Black, Clyde Lovellette and current performers, Wilt Chamberlain and Wayne Hightower.... He was All-State for three years (New Mexico) in basketball and won all-state honors in football once....His first year in the new ABL, he had a mark of 1,697 points, 1059 reounds, a .459 fg% and a .702 free throw norm.... He won the ABL Most Valuable Player award....Tremendously strong, and a bull off the boards, he is often called upon to guard a post man usually four or five inches taller than himself....He's a fine defensive player, maybe the best of the starting forwards in the league....With the Hawks primarily a running club under Coach Guerin, Bridges is expected to have a banner year ....He proved that when he was given a starting spot when Guerin took over ....He is a sales representative for the Continental Baking Company in the off-season, having been with that company for the past four years....He is also active in this city's United Fund drive as a special ambassador to industrial concerns....He is married to the former Barbara Gaitor....

"POGO"
"JUMPIN' JOE"

When Joe Caldwell came to the Hawks last December 27 in exchange for John Barnhill, the fortunes of the club seemed to take a turn for the better.... He appeared to be the spark that the Hawks needed to start them jelling to one of their most exciting seasons....In his first game, Joe scored 21 points as the Hawks beat Philadelphia, then he came back two nights later to toss in the winning basket in the final 10 seconds as the Hawks beat Boston 100-98....He continued his sensational play the rest of the year especially in the post-season playoffs when he avereged 18.9 points a game and hit 33 markers in the first playoff game against Baltimore, March 24, on the Bullets home court - a new single game career high for him....With the Hawks in 46 games, he scored 655 points for a 14.2 mark and had a .447 field goal %....He is the ninth of 11 children born to Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Caldwell....He attended Fremont High School in Los Angeles (living there with a sister) and won All-City and All-American honors in basketball....In track, he high jumped 6-5½....He was asked to try for the Olympic track team in that event but felt he had to concentrate on a sport in which he could earn some money.... He is the sole support of 11 people....As an All-American basketball player at Arizona State, he scored 1,518 points - 13.3 as a sophomore;19.7 as a junior and 21.8 as a senior....Named to Olympic squad he led the U.S. to the title in Tokyo in the fall of 1964....Drafted first by Detroit in 1964, he saw action in 66 games with the Pistons after joining them following the Olympics....He was, however, not happy that he was relegated to a substitute role and expressed his displeasure to Detroit coach, Dave DeBusschere....He has since regreted speaking out of turn but his pleasure at being traded to the Hawks is obvious....Joe needs to take advantage of his great agility and speed to acquire some new moves - especially to the hoop - since Richie Guerin feels he can shoot eight to ten free throws a game once he learns to go to the backet rather than to stop - and take the jumper....Joe was named to the NBA All-Rookie Team as a freshman....He can play some guard especially against some of the less agile and bigger backliners in the circuit....Had his NBA regular season high game of 31 vs Boston on November 7, 1964 and his regular season high as a Hawk was against Baltimore, February 20, 1966....Coach Richie Guerin feels Joe can develop into one of the best defensive players in the league once he makes his mind up to concentrate on defense too...."Joe's got all the tools to be a super-star"....He is married to the former Sharon Allen and they have a daughter, Tiffany, age 3....Joe worked for the state of Arizona last summer but will reside in St. Louis on a full-time basis this year and will work for the Hawks in a promotional capacity....

ROD THORN

AGE: 25
HEIGHT: 6' 4"
WEIGHT: 195
Born in Princeton, West Virginia on May 23, 1941
College: West Virginia U. from 1959 to 1963
Residence: St. Louis, Missouri

"HOTS"

Acquired from the Detroit Pistons last December 23, Rod is expected to be one of the starters for the club this season....A first draft pick of the Baltimore Bullets after he graduated from West Virginia in 1963, Rod has been handicapped by a variety of injuries and shifts to various clubs during his pro career....Now that he is settled with one club, the Hawks feel Rod can finally develop into a top-flight player....Rod was the subject of quite a controversey while in high school at Princeton, West Virginia....There was talk that he was about to enroll at either North Carolina or Duke and it took an act of legislation by the House of Representatives of the state of West Virginia to keep him from going away to school....They passed a resolution asking that he stay in his home state....His records at West Virginia were second only to Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers who also attended there....There were times in college when Rod couldn't decide whether or not to try his hand at pro basketball or baseball....He was a standout on the diamond and major league scouts were pursuing him every day....His father, Joe, a former minor league pitcher, wanted him to try his hand at baseball....However, in the spring of his junior year he was hit on the head by a baseball and decided to forget that sport and try basketball....He felt he could make it quicker in pro basketball than in baseball because he would start in a big league right away...."You can make money quicker in basketball than in baseball right away," Rod says....With Baltimore he averaged 14.4 points a game scoring 1080 points in his rookie season....He made the NBA All-Rookie team in his first year....He was traded to Detroit in 1964 in the biggest trade in league history that saw the Pistons get Don Kojis, Terry Dischinger and himself in exchange for Wally Jones, Les Hunter, Bailey Howell, Bob Ferry and Don Ohl....Only Dischinger is still with Detroit and he is in the service....He came to the Hawks in exchange for John Tresvant and Charley Vaughn ....Thorn's high game as a pro was 31 points with Detroit against Boston and his high game as a Hawk was 28 against Boston last March 4 at Providence, R. I..... Rod is a fine driver and an outstanding jump shooter from 15-25 feet out....He is fearless in his drive to the hoop and only needs to be a little less excited in his play to become one of the best guards in the league....He is not a great playmaker but with Len Wilkens as his mate on the backlines, he does not have to be a tremendous ball-handler....Rod's mother teaches in the Thorn Elementary School on Thorn Street in his home town and some of the buildings in that city are named for his family....Rod's wife, the former Margaret Reynolds, expects to enter one of the St. Louis' colleges this fall to earn a degree in Dental Hygiene....He spent all last summer working and instructing at boys' camps throughout the West Virginia-North Carolina area hoping to develop his basketball skills....He plans to make St. Louis his year-round home....

PAUL SILAS

AGE: 23
HEIGHT: 6' 7"
WEIGHT: 225 lbs.
Born in Prescott, Arkansas, July 12, 1943
Residence: St. Louis, Missouri
College: Creighton University from 1960 to 1964

"SHOTGUN"

The second draft choice of the Hawks in 1964, Silas indicated he has all the tools to be one of the top players in the NBA providing he can improve on his shooting....Primarily a center in college, and in his first year as a pro, Paul hit only .373 from the field last year working out of the center slot.... Paul was injured in service last August and missed the majority of the first part of the season....A leg injury handicapped him and he was sent to the Hawks farm club at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, in the Eastern League where in his first game he broke the EL rebound mark....He averaged more than six rebounds per game - and only 11.4 minutes per game last year....He had a career rebound high of 20 vs. San Francisco at Omaha, Nebraska last December 5, his second game of the season....He played in Omaha at Creighton U. during his college days....Paul upped his field goal mark to .405 - a gain of 32 points over his rookie year but needs to improve on his shooting....He worked out four nights each week during the summer and has been impressive thus far.... If he can develop an outside shot, and he was a forward in high school, he could be one of the best big men in the league....A great high school star at McClymonds High in Oakland, California, a school that produced among other top pro sport stars Boston's Bill Russell, Silas was twice named Northern California Athlete of the Year, breaking Russell's high school scoring marks ....He was an All-American choice as a junior and senior on some squads at Creighton and led his school to 57 wins in 82 games during his three varsity years....He set six all-time school marks including most points, career (1,661); points per game, career (20.5); field goals, career (643); rebounds, career 1,751 and 21.6 per game and rebounds per season (631 in 29 games in 63-64).... He averaged 22.0 points a game as a senior; 21.2 as a junior and 18.5 as a sophomore....Led the nation in rebounding as a sophomore and junior and finished second to Bob Pelkington of Xavier University as a senior....had a high game of 37 points vs Notre Dame, January 11, 1963....and high rebound mark of 38 vs Centenary College January 19, 1962....High scoring mark as pro was vs Philly at St. Louis, March 3, 1965, when he tossed in 17 points, 13 in final quarter. Grabbed 10 or more rebounds in 29 games in 1964-65 season. Paul was a community relations representative for Anheuser-Busch Inc. during the off-season working with Zelmo Beaty....He plans to continue in that field as a marketing representative next year....Like so many other Hawks, he now makes St. Louis his year-round residence....He is married to the former Carolyn Kemp and they are expecting Twins in the coming months....

GENE TORMOHLEN

AGE: 29
HEIGHT: 6' 9"
WEIGHT: 260 lbs.
Born in Holland, Indiana on May 12, 1937
Residence: Kansas City, Missouri
College: University of Tennessee from 1955 to 1959

"BUMPER"

The Bumper returned to the Hawks last season after a one year retirement to give the club adequate back-up stability at center....That didn't sit too well with some of the NBA centers who have been battered by his hell-for-leather dashes to the backboards during his previous years with the club....Gene retired at the end of the 1963-64 season partly because he felt his style of play was more condusive to a running game than to the pattern style of play the Hawks were utlizing at that time....After Rickie Guerin was named coach in the middle of the 1964-65 season, Gene was asked to return last fall...And he was so enthused he immediately moved to St. Louis on a full-time basis....Gene played college ball at Tennessee and was a two-time All-South-eastern Conference selection....He captained the Vols in his senior year in 1959....After graduation. (he was picked on the second round by the then Syracuse Nationals), he joined the amateur Cleveland Pipers of the National Industrial Basketball League for whom he played two seasons....There he teamed with John Barnhill, an ex-Hawk and Dick Barnett, now with New York, to help the Pipers to a NIBL crown and to the AAU title, in 1961....In 1961-62 he played with Cincinnati coach, Jack McMahon, at Kansas City in the defunct American Basketball League and was voted that circuit's top center....He scored 947 points in 76 games for a 12.4 mark and grabbed 808 rebounds....An aggressive board man, he is a good outside shooter rather than an inside man although he has improved his hook shot the past year....He looks awkward on the court but rarely makes a bad pass....Oddly enough, Gene is quicker today than when he played at Tennessee even though his playing weight is 250....He loves to run, often over friend and foe alike, and is ideal on the fast break....The Hawks acquired the rights to him from Syracuse in 1962 paying $20,000 and a draft choice for the big fellow....He joined the club in January of 1963 along with Bill Bridges, a teammate at Kansas City but saw limited action the rest of the year....He's the ideal type of team player who is content to play as little or as much as needed and always gives 100 per cent...He had his high game in the NBA last December 11, scoring 16 markers against Los Angeles there....He is married to the former Julie Strafford of Kansas City and works as a youth guidance counseler in the off-season.....
Tormohlen is an outstanding golfer who hits the ball 300 or more yards off the tee....He has a nine handicap....

LOUIS HUDSON

AGE: 22 "LOU"
HEIGHT: 6' 5"
WEIGHT: 220 lbs.
Born in Greensboro, North Carolina on July 11, 1944
Residence: St. Louis, Missouri
College: University of Minnesota from 1962 to 1966

The first draft choice of the Hawks last spring, Hudson may well be the surprise player of the 1966-67 NBA season....He played 13 games (out of 17) last year with a broken right wrist - his shooting hand....All - Big Ten for three stright years, Hudson earned All-American honors on a host of clubs as junior....After missing seven contests with his wrist injury he came back to still average 19.8 per game last season, hitting .472 from the field....He missed setting an all-time Minnesota scoring mark by only six points due to that injury....He did set a single-season individual high as a junior scoring 558 points in 24 games for a 23.3 mark....He led the Big Ten in field goals that year with 139 marking the first time in this modern era that a Minnesota player had achieved that distinction....In a post-season all-star at Wichita, Kansas, last April 2, Hudson scored 22 markers and grabbed 19 rebounds to win unanimously the game's MVP award....He still played with his hand in a cast....A year ago, Hudson was the MVP as the United States won the World University games tournament held at Budapest, Hungary....Former Princeton All-American, Bill Bradley, who first called the Hawks attention to Hudson, called him "the greatest college player he had ever played with - or against"....A tremendous offensive player, he may be better on defense....He was forced to adjust his defensive moves last year due to the injury....Michigan coach, Dave Strack, summed it up well when he said "Hudson does more without the ball than any man I've ever seen"....A native of Greensboro, North Carolina, Lou led Dudley High of that city to court prominence and earned offers to 23 major and 31 small colleges or universities....A fine high school quarterback, he also received numerous football offers and was drafted 20th by the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, despite the fact that he didn't play college football....A guard in high school, Hudson feels the experience gained at that position is, in part, responsible for his multifold offensive moves....He started playing basketball since at 5-11 in the eighth grade, he was the biggest boy and they used to kid him about his height....He gained valuable experience by playing against a lot of pro and college boys....while still in high school..... He has a fine outside jumper and has the type of moves you see in Elgin Baylor.... although he's no Baylor....at least not yet....He does handle the ball as well as any NBA forward and could be the best Hawks draft choice since the club selected Zelmo Beaty in 1962....

DICK SNYDER

AGE: 22
HEIGHT: 6' 5"
WEIGHT: 215
Born in North Canton, Ohio on February 1, 1944
Residence: North Canton, Ohio
College: Davidson, North Carolina College from 1962 to 1966

The second draft choice of the Hawks, Snyder's coming to the club was almost a certainity....If the Hawks had not been able to select Lou Hudson first, Snyder was their top pick and had he not slacked off in post-season play, he was certain to go to another club earlier than the second round....The Hawks are still pinching themselves....Dick was an All-American high school star as a quarterback at North Canton High School and was even named to the All-State team as a pitcher - outfielder in baseball....He was only honorable mention in basketball on the all - state team but wanted to concentrate on the court sport....He turned down a flood of offers to play football and finally decided to go to Davidson - a small school but a reknowned basketball power....Last year, he led them to their third straight Southern Conference title and ranked 14th nationally with 26.9 points a game on 753 markers in 28 contests....He was 12th nationally among the major colleges in field goal percentage with a .563 mark on 284 of 504 attempts....His total point production last year was a school mark and his overall total of 1,693 was second only to Fred Hetzel who now plays for the San Francisco Warriors....He was All-Southern conference and made the Associated Press, United Press and SPORTING NEWS, All-American teams,...He had a 15.9 mark as a sophomore and a 20.2 mark as a junior....Since his coach, Lefty Driesell, stressed defensive, Snyder was the best Hawks rookie in that department in the various training camps....He held his opposite foe to 10 points a game less than his normal average in every game during his college career....He has tremendous quickness and is a fine shooter although in college he often passed up the easy shot to hand the ball off to a teammate.... Richie Guerin has been working Snyder at a guard as well as at a forward and he definitely will play guard next season....if not this one....He played two years of varsity college baseball, sitting out the past season....He was offered contracts from five major league baseball clubs on the strength of his long ball hitting ability....

TOM KRON

AGE: 22
HEIGHT: 6' 5"
WEIGHT: 200
Born in Tell City, Indiana on February 28, 1944
Residence: St. Louis, Missouri
College: University of Kentucky from 1962 to 1966

The third draft choice of the St. Louis Hawks, Kron was the captain of the University of Kentucky team that won the Southeastern Conference last year and then lost to Texas Western in the finals of the NCAA tourney in College Park, Maryland last March....He moved to Owensboro, Kentucky after his high school days....Oddly enough, Kron will come to the Hawks at the same time that Cliff Hagan retires....Cliff grew up in Owensboro and then went on to fame at Kentucky ....as did Kron....As a sophomore, Kron gained national fame for his defensive ability as the "point" man in Coach Adolph Rupp's specially concocted 1-3-1 defense that won for Kentucky the SEC title....That gave him the impetus to try for pro ball....Tom is the ideal guard at 6-5 - big and quick-reacting plus ability to hit well from outside or drive to the basket....Like so many of the others on the Hawks roster, Tom can play two-ways - forward and guard - but he is not expected to revert to the swing man role he played in college....Always a fine shooter, Tom hit .423 from the field as a sophomore, .491 as a junior when he led the Wildcats in that department and .482 as a senior....Overall, he made 282 shots of 597 attempts for a .473 mark....His free throw percentages were among the best in the nation hitting .823, .814 and .851 in his three years at Lexington....Tom had numerous college offers but the lure of big-time basketball at Kentucky and the fact that his family had moved to Owensboro immediately after his graduation from high school were the deciding factors....He was named to the all-state High School team in Indiana....in his senior year....Kron is not the flashy type player you usually associate with great ball clubs such as Kentucky, but he is the leader of the offense and actually asks to guard the opposition's toughest backliner....He is a fine outside shot and his moves to the basket are deceiving...He worked for the state of Kentucky last summer in land development and plans to seek the same type of employment in Missouri this summe ...He was married to the former Dianne Berger last summer and they plan to live in St. Louis the year round.

MEET THE HAWKS ANNOUNCING TEAM....

JERRY GROSS, HARRY CARAY AND CLIFF HAGAN.....

JERRY GROSS - RADIO PLAY-BY-PLAY - Starting his seventh year as a member of the Hawks broadcasting team, the personable Gross brings a world of broadcasting experience to his "calling" of the court action. The 33-year-old native of New England has a sound knowledge of all sports, particularly basketball and his facility with words and his informal, pleasant manner has brought him increasing popularity. A graduate of Middlebury (Vt.) College, he served two years in the Army doubling as a regimental athletic officer. After his discharge, he served stints as sports director of stations in Ohio and Illinois handling play-by-play of a variety of sports - college and pro. He joined the Hawks air team in 1960. During the summer he is a member of the Baseball Cardinals announcing team.

HARRY CARAY - TELEVISION - This will be the third year for Caray as a Hawks broadcaster but he has long been considered one of the nation's top sportscasters because of his vivid descriptions of the action and his ability to transmit the game's excitement to his listeners. Throughout Mid-America, and most of the nation, his "It might be..it could be..it is (a home run)" is a familiar sound of the baseball season. But whether he's describing baseball, football or basketball, his broadcasts have become far more than play-by-play reports. His versatility, his sound knowledge of the sports and his vast stores of factual information and legends add showmanship to his coverage of every event. Honored many times during his 21-years as a sportscater, Caray counts his greatest achievement his selection for the SPORTING NEWS award as the outstanding play-by-play announcer in the National League in 1946-1948,1949 and 1951. He has done numerous major college grid bowl games and last year was tabbed to handle the play-by-play of the World Series on radio.

CLIFF HAGAN - COLOR RADIO AND TV - Cliff joins the Hawks announcing team after a brilliant career as one of pro basketball's most exciting performers playing 10 years in the NBA....He ranks ninth on the all-time scoring list with 13,447 points in 746 games for a 18.0 mark....And in post-season competition he was at his greatest... in the playoffs - in 90 games - Cliff scored 1.834 points for a 20.4 mark hitting .453 from the field and .800 from the foul line....He appeared in five NBA East-West All-Star games and was named to the NBA All-Star second team twice....He played on the great undefeated University of Kentucky team in 1954 that won 25 consecutive games and the NCAA crown, sharing the captain role with Frank Ramsey, the ex-Boston Celtic great....Cliff set his pro single game high of 55 against Cincinnati, February 11, 1962, at home....He holds a Master's Degree in Education from Washington U....Married to the former Martha Milton, the Hagans have four children (daughters, Lisa, Laurie, Amy and a son, Cliff Jr.).
